

Parent Advisory Council
Announces a presentation on:

Social Skills- A Team Approach

Tools You Can Put Into Practice!

February 10, 2010

7:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.

Adams Middle School

Chorus Room

Join us for a conversation on social skills. See why social skills should be a team approach and not an isolated experience. The presenters will bring their expertise and pragmatic suggestions for working with children, their families, schools and community support services; leaving you with tools you can put into practice each and every day.

Brian Armstrong is a Board Certified Associate Behavior Analyst, licensed Special Education Teacher and a member of the Connecticut Association of Behavior Analysts. In order to effectively serve more families Brian created the Synergy Center Corporation. Synergy Center Corporation is a company focused on helping individuals with disabilities and weakened health conditions make quality connections with themselves, their community and their world. Kate O'Boyle is a certified and experienced school administrator and guidance counselor. She has worked in this capacity in Connecticut and other states.

This is the third of a series of presentations that is being offered by Parent Advisory Council, a subsidiary of the Pupil Services Department's Parent Academy. For more details refer to www.guilford.k12.ct.us or contact Co-Chairs: Tom Gray, Gina Little, or Dr. Patricia Brett, Pupil Services Director at (203) 453-0128.

DISCLAIMER: These presentations are under the auspices of the P.A.C. They are for the sole purposes of introducing parents to various organizations that might be of help in raising children. The Guilford School District does not endorse these organizations.
